THE RIGHT LAWYERS FOR YOU

BUSINESS DEVELOPMENT

Patents have become part of one of the properties of the businesses today and therefore patents may be assigned and licensed to third parties for their commercial use and development of businesses.

BENEFITS OF PATENT REGISTRATION

Licensing of Patent

The registration for patent and publication invites public attention, at the same time, industries are not required to copy or infringe the invention but may get the license to use such inventions lawfully.

Encouragement for Innovations

Registration of patents influences the pace of competitors for innovations and also the information of patents such as the working process, terminologies, and functionality is available publically which is beneficial for the public at large.

Revenue Generation

The patent owners hold the right to restrict the use of their patented innovations which helps them to use such patents to expedite production and sell which has a monopoly in the market. He may sell the patent rights as well which attracts huge financial revenue.

Protection against duplicity

Patents also protect from third-party interventions or infringement against duplicity and unfair use of the patented innovations.

Global Investment

Patents attract global investors who are interested to invest in innovations and which also helps boost the gain in global business. This revenue from patents may be used further for other innovations and research which may help further for commercial and industrial growth.
